

DMS (Data Management) Ltd

“completing the network solution”

DMS (Data Management) Ltd is a UK company who acquired the assets of Data and Information Management Ltd (DIML). The development and support of these Data & Information Technology (D&IT) products is continuing under DMS (Data Management) Ltd. Data and Information Technology Ltd. (D&IT) was founded in 1987 targeting the data acquisition and control market, producing innovative solutions for customers in the transportation and utilities sectors.

As the business developed, the company launched telecommunication multiplexing products and associated Network Management System products aimed at the access market. This product range now supports solution for operators of lower capacity telecommunications networks, supporting SNMP agents and management options to enable deployment in Multi vendor networks.

DMS Data Management is based in Leicestershire and provides production and business facilities for a team who are highly experienced with a broad knowledge of different types of technologies and their associated industries.

Initially providing data acquisition and integrated communication systems into the transportation industry, the company has expanded its business by developing and migrating its products into many other varied and diverse market sectors, including public and private Telecommunications Industries. DMS has gained comprehensive market knowledge through strategic long-term relationships with major clients and OEM arrangements. This knowledge has yielded a thorough understanding of the business and market requirements and has consequently allowed DMS to design and implement innovative technology to meet tomorrow's challenges.
